FOREWORD

This is the thirtieth annual report on collective agreement expirations, produced by the Office of Collective Bargaining Information (OCBI).

The information contained in this report is derived from the database of the Office of Collective Bargaining Information, as of December 6, 1996. It does not include situations that will result from recent or future certifications by the Ontario Labour Relations Board, or expired agreements that had not been settled or ratified when the report was completed.

Detailed tables and listings of 1997 expirations by industry, union, and size of bargaining unit are available from OCBI. For further information on this publication or other services, please call (416) 326-1260.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The report, Ontario Collective Bargaining Agreement Expirations, provides an overview of collective bargaining activity in Ontario, expected in 1997. A summary of the key findings of this report are outlined below.

- There are thirty percent fewer collective agreements expiring in 1997 than in 1996, covering thirty-five percent fewer employees.
- The main reason for the decrease in the number of agreement expirations in 1997 is the large number of agreements which expired in 1996, under the Social Contract Act. Only twelve percent of BPS agreements are due to expire in 1997.
- The increase in length of contract term also explains the decrease in the number of agreements expiring in 1997, particularly for the private sector. The three-year term has become increasingly popular in the last few years as private sector employers seek long term stability.
- Most bargaining activity will take place in March, June, and December, mainly due to contract expirations in health and welfare, non-metallic minerals, printing and publishing, retail trade, fabricated metals, transportation, education, federal government, and local government sectors.
- Key negotiations in the private sector include: Inco, Falconbridge, A & P (12 contracts), Air Canada (maintenance and related), Canadian Pacific Railways, Via Rail, United Parcel Service, Barnes Security Services, Bombardier/DeHavilland, the Toronto Star, Consumers Gas, Willett Foods (Mr. Grocer). Provincial public sector agreements expiring in 1997, include the Municipality of Metro Toronto, the City of Toronto, the Ontario Council of Regents (support staff), Ontario Housing Authority, various school boards, health and community services.
- The top five unions covering the largest number of employees under agreements expiring in 1997 are the Public Service Alliance, the United Steelworkers, the Canadian Union of Public Employees, the United Food and Commercial Workers and the Canadian Auto Workers.

ONTARIO COLLECTIVE BARGAINING, AGREEMENT EXPIRATIONS, 1997

Collective bargaining activity scheduled for 1997 will involve 2,324 collective agreements covering 355,823 employees. Compared to 1996, there is a decrease of thirty percent in the number of bargaining situations covering thirty-five percent less employees. Current data shows that the number of employees covered by expiring collective agreements in 1997 will be the third lowest in the last ten years. (See Figure 1.)

The agreements up for renewal in 1997 represent about a quarter of Ontario's 10,064 agreements and affect a quarter of its 1,474,353 unionized employees.

The major factor for the decrease in collective agreement expirations in 1997 is the large number of Broad-based Public Sector (BPS) agreements which expired in 1996 as a result of the Social Contract Act. As of December 6, 1996, three quarters of all BPS collective agreements had expired and had not been renewed. In 1997 only 12 percent of all BPS agreements are scheduled to expire. In the years before the Social Contract Act, an average of 45 percent of all BPS agreements expired each year.

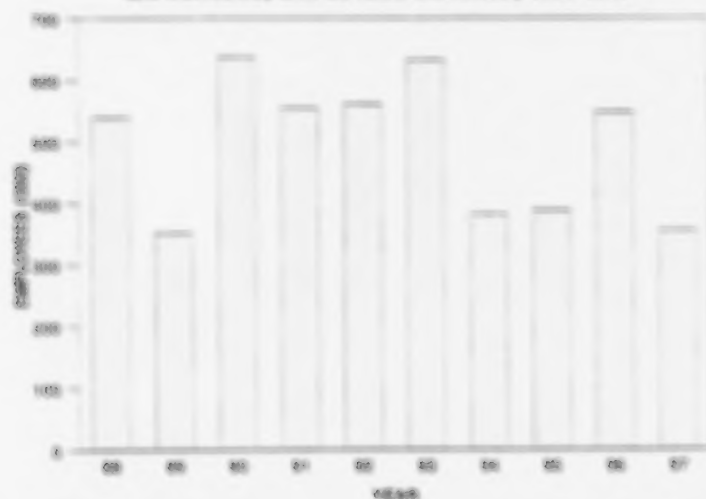

Another factor influencing the decline in the number of contract expirations is the increase in the length of contract term. The three-year term has become increasingly popular in the last few years as private sector employers seek long term stability in labour relations. In comparison, the two-year term remains most common in the public sector.

The majority of bargaining in the BPS in 1997 will involve the school boards, college support staff, university support staff, community services, municipalities and the federal government. The majority of BPS expirations are scheduled for March, August and December.

Key negotiations in the private sector will be concentrated in non-metallic minerals, printing and publishing, retail and wholesale trade, fabricated metals and transportation. (See Tables 1 and 2.)

Economic Setting

As in 1996, collective bargaining in 1997 will take place in an improving economic environment. In 1996, Ontario's real domestic product is estimated to rise by 2.3 percent, reflecting a major expansion in the second half of the year. The Ministry of Finance projects real growth of 2.9 percent in 1997 and 3.0 percent in 1998. (See Figure 2 below.)

The annual inflation rate, as measured by the Ontario Consumer Price Index (CPI), was 1.4 percent in 1996, down from 2.4 percent in 1995. The Ministry of Finance forecasts that inflation will remain low at 1.6 percent and 1.8 percent in 1997 and 1998 respectively.

The national unemployment rate remained high at 9.7 percent in 1996, up slightly from 9.5 percent in 1995. Ontario's unemployment rate also increased from 8.7 percent in 1995 to 9.1 percent in 1996. It is expected that the rate will range from 8.2 percent to 8.7 percent in 1997 and from 7.9 percent to 8.4 percent in 1998.

Under collective agreements covering 200 or more Ontario employees, negotiated settlements during the first 10 months of 1996 provided an average increase of 1.0 percent per year, unchanged from 1995. Wage settlements in the private sector increased from 1.7 percent in 1995 to 2.3 percent in 1996. This was largely a result of wage increases in manufacturing settlements (2.9 percent). In the public sector, wage settlements remained low with an average of 0.2 percent.

The moderate economic recovery and improving labour market conditions may produce pressures for higher wage settlements, particularly in the export-oriented manufacturing sectors. However, continuing low inflation and fiscal restraint in the public sector will continue to have a moderating effect on overall wage settlements. As industries throughout the economy continue to restructure job security and labour adjustment will remain high on the bargaining agenda.

Monthly Activity

Expirations during the months of June, July, August and December cover the largest number of employees, representing over 60 percent of the total for the year. The sectors responsible for the large coverage of employees are federal government, retail trade, communications, education, local government, transportation, and printing and publishing.

The volume of bargaining scheduled for the above months includes: Treasury Board of Canada (June, July, August - 54,000 employees), A & P (June, July - 9,900), Canada Post (July - 22,000), Barnes Security Services (June - 1,500), Ottawa Electrical Contractors' Association (June - 1,200), Bombardier/DeHavilland (June - 1,680), Air Canada (June - 2,060), various school boards (August - 19,900), York University (July - 1,300), Toronto Star Newspapers (December - 1,560), Canadian National Railways (December - 5,750), Canadian Pacific Railways (December - 3,150), City of Toronto (December - 4,590), and the Municipality of Toronto (December - 9,125).

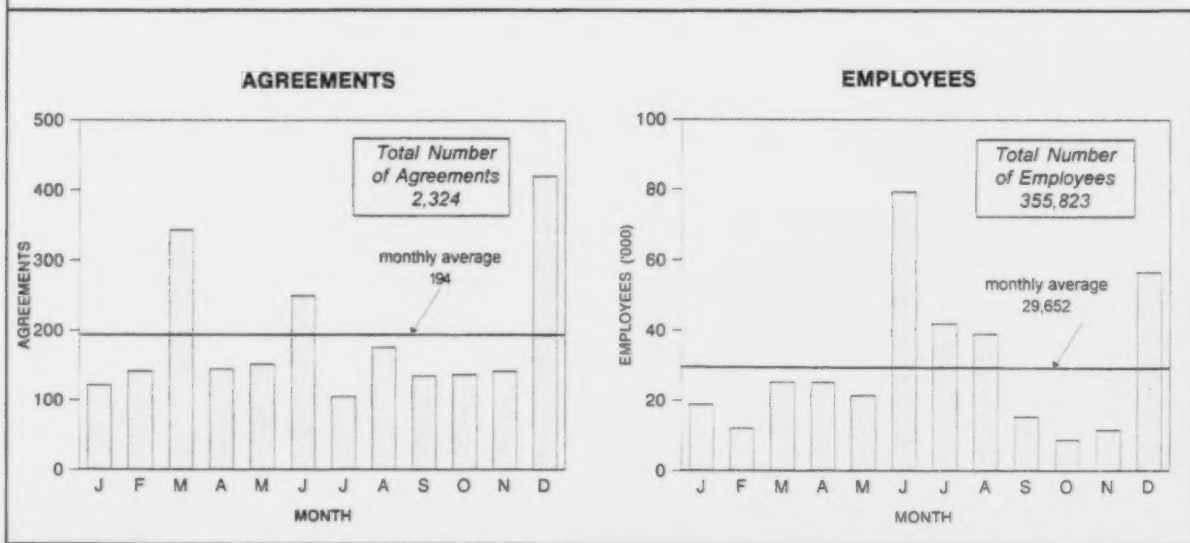

Industrial Activity

Bargaining in 1997 will once again be concentrated in the non-manufacturing sector due to the large number of contracts expiring in the health and welfare sector, education and related, retail and wholesale trade, transportation and other services such as security and investigation services. There will be 1,431 collective agreements expiring in the non-manufacturing sector, covering about 272,260 employees. This represents sixty-two percent of all expirations for the year. The Broader Public Sector accounts for 37 percent of non-manufacturing agreement expirations and almost 30 percent of employees.

Just over 38 percent of bargaining will occur in the manufacturing sector covering about 24 percent of employees scheduled to bargain. Manufacturing sector expirations are based primarily in fabricated metals, food and beverage, printing and publishing, and non-metallic minerals.

Major private sector negotiations include Inco Ltd. (mining and quarrying), Falconbridge Ltd. (mining and quarrying), A & P (retail trade - 12 contracts), Air Canada (transportation - maintenance and related), Canadian Pacific Railways (transportation), Canadian National Railways (transportation), Via Rail (transportation), United Parcel Service (services to business), Barnes Security Services (services to business), Bombardier/DeHavilland (transportation equipment), the Toronto Star (printing and publishing), Consumers Gas (utilities), Ottawa Electrical Contractors Association (construction), Budd Canada Inc. (transportation equipment), Pharma Plus Drugmarts (retail trade), and Willett Foods (retail trade).

Public sector negotiations include Treasury Board of Canada, Canada Post, the Municipality of Metro Toronto, the City of Toronto, the Ontario Council of Regents (support staff), Ontario Housing Authority, various school boards, health and community services.

Union Activity

Almost eighty percent of all employees in negotiations in 1997 are covered by ten unions. (See chart below.) The Public Service Alliance, the United Steelworkers, the Canadian Union of Public Employees, the United Food and Commercial Workers, the Canadian Auto Workers and the Canadian Union of Postal Workers represent over sixty percent of all employees covered by agreements expiring in 1997. More than ninety-two different unions will be participating in negotiations in 1997.
